

Dr Jane Rowley

Jane has held a dual career across education and social care for 30 years with an interest in collaborative research which can be applied to practice. She works with people living with dementia who wish to engage in peer support at Trent Dementia. She was course lead for Clinical Communication (yr2) on the MBChB at the University of Liverpool designing curriculum for clinical trainees around meaningful communication in clinical settings. She is a social researcher who teaches research methods and theory on the Doctorate in Education at Staffordshire University.